[From the New York Tribune, 14th.]

About 10 o'clock the City Hall bell struck the alarm of fire from Barnum's Museum, and the New York fire department responded promptly to the call. The flames spread with fearful rapidity, and in a short time the whole building was in a blaze. The fire department worked with great energy, but the flames were beyond their control, and the building was entirely destroyed. In the confusion and excitement which prevailed, the wild animals were forgotten, and were left to their fate. The following is a list of the animals destroyed:

Lions, Tigers, Pumas, and the Remorseless Bengal Tiger.

After a pleasant social time, the company repaired to the dining room, where the evening was brought to a close by the presentation to Mr. Howland, on behalf of the class, of a magnificent gold watch and chain, accompanied by a short and appropriate address. Mr. Howland responded in a few remarks, which showed the pleasure he felt in the manifestation of regard on the part of the class, and his appreciation of the gift. Mr. Howland has been connected with the High School from its commencement, and has filled the position of Principal for the last two years, by his efficiency and ability, has contributed largely to the success of the school. The class of which he has had charge, is the largest class, as a whole, that has yet graduated from the High School, the average of the composition and scholarship of which is very high.
